Schools are charging fees for 'everything under the sun'

INSULAR

to figure out which bill to pay before something was cut off.

I remember her sitting at the table paying parts of bills as she stretched every dollar as far as possible. I will forever be grateful.

One thing she never knew was there would be many times there would be a school event, and after it was over, she would ask "Why didn't you tell me?"

I would make up a story. Kids at school would ask why I didn't take part in every activity. The truth is because my mom was doing everything in her power to put food on the table, and I knew it.

I tell this story now because of the quiet battle I have been fighting with people who do not seem to understand the feeling of children in this community when they are hampered unfairly by conditions people rarely realize.

Over the last several years, schools in our poor little town have begun charging fees for everything under the sun.

If you want to wear a hat, pay a dollar.

If you want to see a show or a movie, pay a dollar.

If you want to participate in extracurricular activities, pay a fee.

If you can't, you have to divulge your personal financial situation (which is a source of shame for many and none of anyone else's business).

I began fighting this by simply asking to work and find other ways to contribute rather than paying fees for my kids to participate in these activities.

I was ignored and brushed off. I have been told "That's the way it's always been done" or "Other schools do it" or "The school programs need the money."

What I have yet to hear is "Let's find a way to make sure everyone has a fair chance."

Please forgive me for not mentioning every single amazing person, but when I played in band and played football I was treated like part of the family. No one cared about my family's situation.

I was every parents' kid too. When I played football, Bill Wright, Benjye Tuten and many others worked hard to ensure we wanted for nothing.

When I was in band, Mrs. Debbie Bryson, Ms. Herndon and others made sure no child wanted for anything. They worked so hard, but we, the kids of the community, were their kids.

Ms. Speas, my mom and Mr. Cone looked out for each of us as equally without ever making stipulations on our participation in school activities.

Teachers like Mrs. Lavalie, Ms. Carmichael, Coach Verges, Mr. Whittaker and Coach Harvey never asked if our fees were paid - they only asked us to work hard.

However, times have changed.

Although the school board has a policy that says "no child will be excluded for not paying fees or uniform cost," that is not the practice.

The ones making these decisions do not even hold this authority according to Florida Statutes. Yet, by not challenging this practice and speaking out, we as citizens have allowed those in power to do as they wish - even if it affects only a few students.

Through my research, I have found that OUR PUBLIC school system has become very insular.

Why is there no published set of hiring standards for our coaches and programs?

Why do they violate their own procedures, and then look at parents like they are the problem when the rules are not being followed?

The Supreme Court case Brown vs Board of Education was not just about segregation, it was about equality: "the very foundation of good citizenship."

They acknowledged that public education was not only necessary to prepare children for their future professions and to enable them to actively participate in the democratic process, but that it was also "a principal instrument in awakening the child to cultural values" present in their communities.

The justices found it very unlikely that a child would be able to succeed in life without a good education. Access to such an education was thus "a right which must be made available to all on equal terms."

A quality education - which the state of Florida says extracurricular and intracurricular activities are a big part of -- is essential to our kids in many ways.

How and why did our community venture to the point where our schools decide who deserves what type of education based on money?

As parents, we want the best for our kids, but what about all of our kids?

I have followed our local School Boards' rules, and will take the next step on that path by presenting information at their Tuesday, Sept. 3 meeting.

I hope I am not standing alone in fighting for ALL of our kids. Douglas Wallace
